

Presents: 2 - 4:30 PM June 5th, 2021

A free workshop by author

Traci Skuce

"The impossible longing."

Have you thought about your narrator or character's impossible longing?

This question probes beneath surface desires and dives into the deeper realm of motivation and how it can push your story into an emotionally resonant space.

Traci Skuce graduated from the Pacific University low-residency MFA program in 2015. Her short stories and non-fiction have appeared in several publications across North America including the New Ohio Review, Grain, december, The New Quarterly, and Prairie Fire. She has been nominated for four Pushcart Prizes and two Journey prizes and she was first runner-up for PRISM international's 2019 Grouse Grind Very Short Forms contest.

For the past twenty years, Traci has lived in Cumberland, BC with her husband and two sons. Her collection of short stories Hunger Moon has been recently released by NeWest Press. More info at www.TraciSkuce.com

Attendees must pre-register to get the ZOOM link.

Email Tri.City.Wordsmiths@Gmail.com to register